Michael J. Williams was born in Miami, Florida, and is a native Floridian. Miami is a city known for its sunshine, beautiful beaches, and warm winters and is a well-known tourist destination. Michael J. Williams is a writer of several original screenplays and author of several books of short stories and novels. Michael J. Williams majored in Computer Science and is the CEO and President of MJW Publishing and Entertainment. An entertainment and publishing company that owns and holds Intellectual Property valued in the billions of dollars. A successful businessman, Michael J. Williams a former Army Reservist, 1991-1999, with an Honorable discharge, enjoys reading, watching movies, sports, and of course writing stories that nourish and feed the imagination. Michael J. Williams is unapologetic about his art, his vivid writing and imagination, and his emotionally pulsating creativity. His writing mostly deals with the fictional world of storytelling using fact-based realities and real-world issues like race and racism, police brutality, white supremacy, and social injustice that has plagued this world for centuries. He writes in the genre of drama, crime, urban and urban fantasy, psychological thrillers, science fiction, action and adventure, mystery, suspense, and fantasy as well as horror. Michael J. Williams writes with the hope and intent that hopefully one day our society will no longer judge a person by the color of their skin or unfairly judge them by their race or ethnicity but judge them by their actions and their humanity or lack thereof. He aspires and hopes that his writing helps to inspire the world to become a better place a more humane world where true peace, true equality, and real justice for all exists and is no longer a fallacy to many of us who suffer at the hands of oppression, racism, discrimination, and white supremacy.

The Fall of a Parasitic Nation and the Rise of Black America

When the glitz and glamor, the fortune and fame, hide a hideous and sinister secret about a notorious serial killer roaming freely on the streets of South Beach.

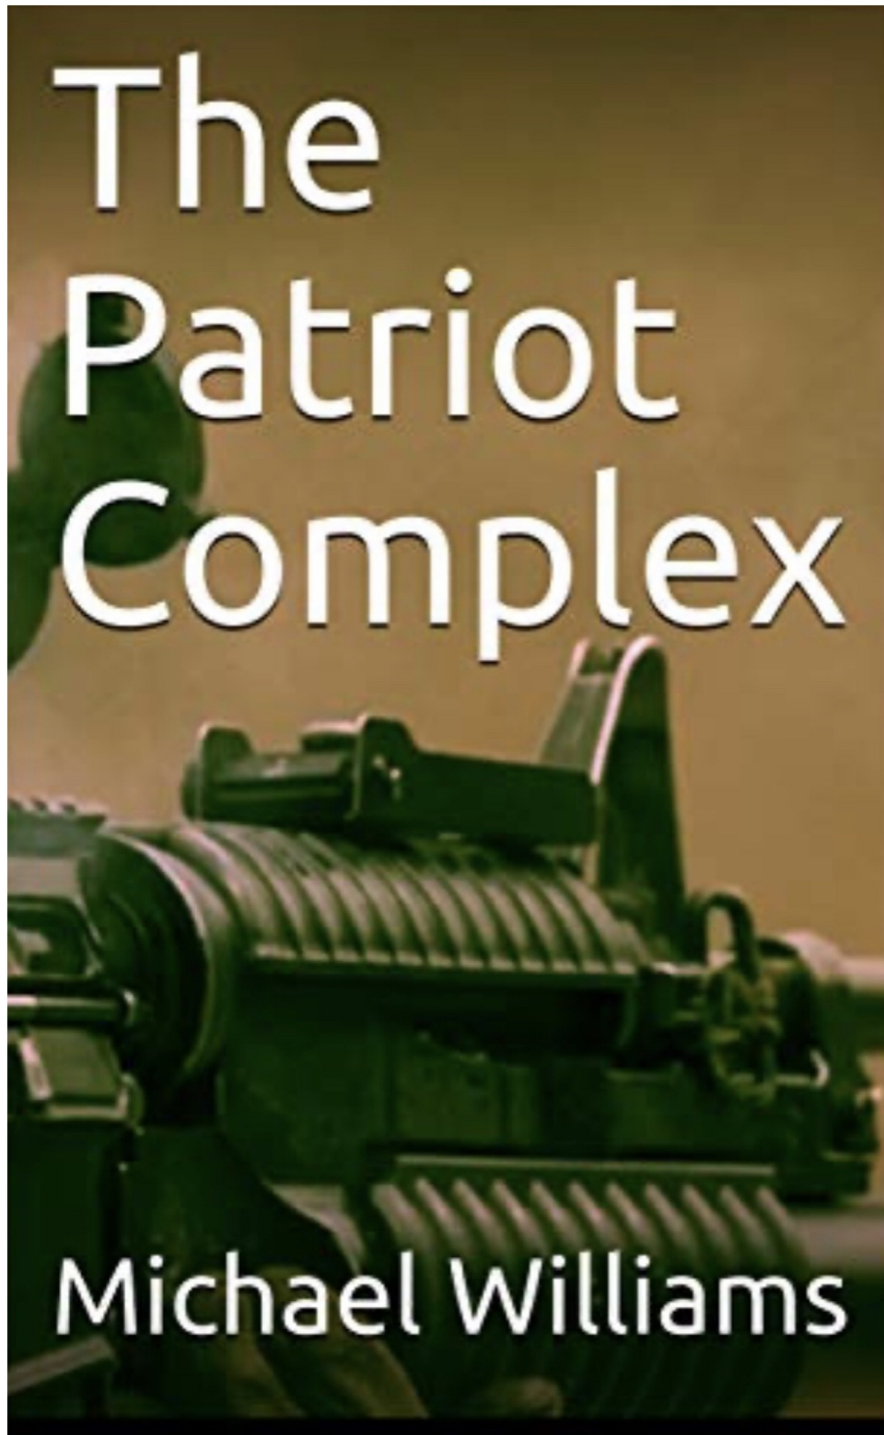

The interconnected lives of everyday people and the impact of drugs, alcoholism, spousal abuse, police brutality, discrimination, racism, and foreign intervention all lead to choices that not only have consequences for their lives but society as well.

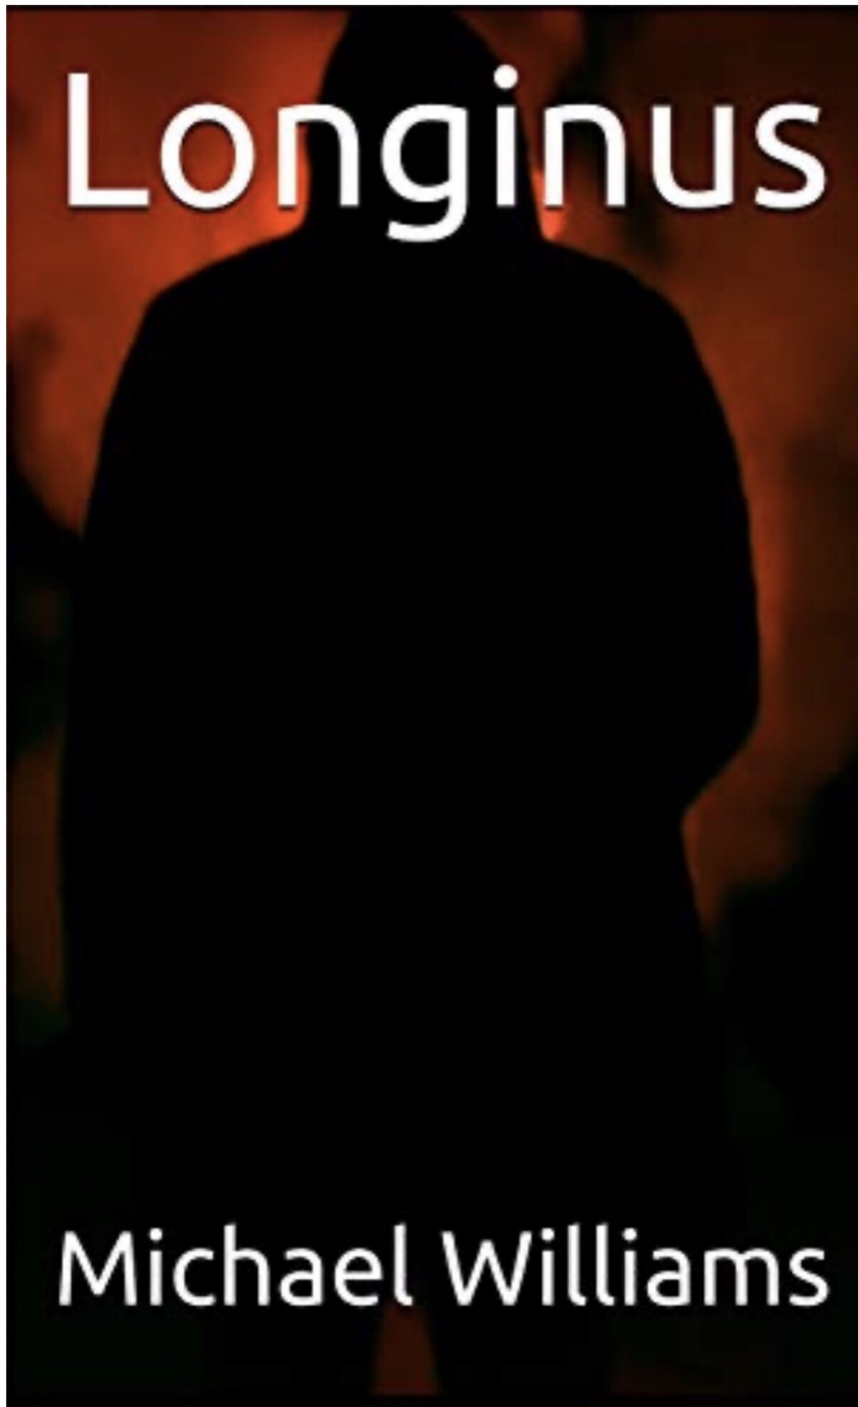

When you are the prey but you are oblivious to the fact that the predator that is hunting you is standing directly in front of you.

Infected with the deadliest plague the world had ever seen. The world must unite to combat and defeat a parasitic mutation that has engulfed the world for thousands of years with its incurable disease.

Elite American soldiers suffering from PTSD seek to destroy the republic and American democracy.

A mysterious billionaire races to capture biblical relics to stop the rise of the Fourth Reich.

A female alien-human hybrid battle a team of super synthesized Anabolic steroid-induced female assassins.

3. The Fall of Amerikkka
4. The Rise of Black America

The human body warms up and heats up to fight off viruses or diseases or even parasites or foreign organisms that enter the body to cause harm by infecting and destroying the cells inside the human body thus making you sick, causing paralysis, or even causing death in some cases. The human body's temperature begins to warm up and heat up to fight off the disease or foreign organism that has invaded its cells trying to destroy, damage, or replicate the white or red blood cells of the human body. And just like the human body the earth began to warm up and heat up when it first became infected with a disease, a plague, a parasite that entered its atmosphere some eight thousand years ago to cause harm and damage to the delicate ecosystem of the planet.

CHAPTER ONE

Evolution and Natural Selection

When and where did life begin on earth and how did we get here is still and always will be the million-dollar question? Why were humans created in the first place and for what reason was behind our creation have been some of the other questions that science along with mankind have been asking and searching for the answers to about life on this planet? We have been searching for hundreds of thousands of years, if not millions of years trying to discover the answer. As we have advanced technologically and evolutionary as a species over the centuries we have begun to slowly answer some of those questions of why, how, and where. Through meticulous scientific research and the advancement of supercomputers, advancement in technology and science over the centuries, we are now on the cusp of discovering the true meaning of life and possibly the reason why humans are on this planet and what is the true reason behind the existence of human beings.

But first, we must discover and learn how we got here and how or what created us before we can discover the true reason why humans were put on this planet in the first place. Was it a one true God that created life on earth as many religious institutions would have you believe through their religious teachings and sermons or was it an enormous spark known as the Big Bang Theory as many well-known and respected scientists concluded and have written papers about and have declared over the years as the truth or as they say in religious sectors, “the gospel” and that life was created by a big bang or an enormous spark that created and formed the universe out of nothingness and is the true reason behind life on this planet? These religious beliefs and scientific discoveries have been the center of heated debates and highly emotional discussions for centuries. Even with scientific evidence and hardcore scientific data, the beliefs and religious faith of people far out way the evidence and the meticulous research and studies conducted and peer-reviewed by the experts in the scientific community on the subject of life on this planet.

Emotions run high on this touchy subject especially since science regularly disputes and disproves someone’s faith and belief in a higher power or deity that they believe to exist even though there is no scientific evidence that a higher being is real or even exists in this universe. And although humans are complex individuals, our emotions are like a volatile nuclear reactor ready to explode if anything perceived or not, damages or hurt its outer protective shell, our feelings, and pride. That outer protective shell which is our feelings is flimsy at best at protecting our emotions or feelings from pain, hurt, disrespect, or abuse. This is why the topic of religion and the creation of life is such a touchy subject and although this book is not here to disregard or disprove any religion or anyone’s religious beliefs. This book is written to examine the science and the scientific evidence of life on this planet, its existence of how and why we got here, and why it may be impossible to gain a true understanding of the dichotomy of the human mind in all of its elegance, its clunkiness, and weirdness, and why the human brain was designed, constructed and has evolved into such a kluge.

There is now recent and concrete scientific evidence that proves that human life started millions of years ago on this planet we call earth, on the continent now known as Africa. A place that many people call the motherland and the place where scientists first documented the very first sign and presence of human life. The continent of Africa is where human life was created, formed, evolved, and flourished over sixty million years ago, to our best scientific estimate, as there is now scientific proof that the first sign of human life could be closer to a billion years ago. And over the centuries these first humans began to migrate and explore the continent of Africa and then explore the entire globe in search of food and shelter and to ensure the survival of this newly created life form. Scientists have discovered and scientifically proven that a Black woman was and is the very first human being or human life form on this planet through meticulous carbon dating and other precise scientific experiments and detailed and extensive archaeological research. Scientists have discovered that the Black woman is the one and only human to exist on this planet for millions of years before environmental and genetic changes occurred that brought about another human life.

The majority of humans, we like to believe, believe, or would agree that human life is precious, according to scientific polls taken across the globe several years ago conducted by the S.A.P.P.A.L.D. INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE. These polls also showed that people believed that life should be cherished and valued. Although the history of the world would say otherwise due to the mistreatment of people across the globe because of racial biases and discrimination, because of religious discrimination, and discrimination against people because of their sexual orientation, and discrimination against people because of their gender, and disabilities.

Some psychologists have written about the bias of people and determined that we all have a “shadow brain” that controls our thought process, emotions, and feelings and are the main reason behind people’s biases and initial judgment or misjudgment of people. And although the so-called shadow brain has not been scientifically proven to be real, as we know very little about the complexity and makeup of the brain and there is no motivation by the federal government and the scientific community to thoroughly investigate the brain or fund these claims about the existence of the shadow brain made by several reputable psychologists, researchers, and Neuropsychologists. Their claims that the so-called shadow brain, although unsubstantiated that it even exists, is the main reason why people are unconscious about their biases or racism towards other people of a different race and not because of some kind of psychological dysfunction or impairment in their way of thinking. These claims by psychologists seem and sound like a fallacy written by quack doctors or a conman and not by reputable psychologists or Neuropsychologists. These claims seem to come from people who refuse to honestly accept or admit to their own biases and prejudices and deal with the scientific truth that most people’s bias and racism are learned and indoctrinated through societal and educational teachings and means.

Indoctrination into white supremacy and racism and Anti-Blackness is the real reason behind someone's biases and racism and not some so-called shadow brain that is being used as an excuse or crutch to forgive or let slide certain people's mental dysfunction and hatred towards others. And that many of these people if not all know of them, to a certain extent, know that they benefit from white supremacy and Anti-Blackness and that they refuse to separate themselves from this kind of hatred and ignorance or even try to better themselves or reeducate themselves and denounce racism and white supremacy and Anti-Blackness. Many of these same people refuse to understand or comprehend that race is a social construct created by the so-called elite or wealthy class to separate, divide, and cause tension and distraction between the poor and working-class people on this planet by using race as a barrier to avoid or stop the chance of unity or unification. Even though many policies enacted by their government go against their self-interest and are the main reason behind them living in poverty or economic distress. This too has been researched and it has been studied and documented and theories have been formed and evaluated and peer-reviewed. The conclusion that many in the scientific community have come to is that there is some kind of genetic defect, mental deformity in the brains of people like these that hold onto something so horrible, so gross and hateful and destructive like racism and the ideology and belief of white supremacy and Anti-Blackness. That it may be impossible for many, if not all of them, to realize, recognize and reeducate and deprogram themselves and free themselves from the brainwashing and propaganda that has indoctrinated many of them into a hateful and resentful lifestyle and worldview. Scientists are now learning and discovering that there are many genetic defects and that mutations over the centuries have crippled the evolution of many of the population that came after the original humans or homo sapiens who walked this earth. But before we dig any deeper we must first dig deeper into the evolution of humans and their creation and migration across the globe.

The world and the evolution of humans and human life started with Black women, an African woman, and through the natural progression of asexual childbirth began to have offsprings that begin to populate the world and slowly migrate across the globe. Although there are many skeptics about the ability of women to have asexual childbirth, it has been scientifically proven and researched for decades and the data proves that this was not only possible but it was more of the norm than a rarity or natural phenomenon several centuries ago. Several genetic mutations and environmental changes across the globe caused asexual childbirth to no longer be the way that life was created on earth. Scientists still have not found the reason behind the environmental changes that caused the genetic mutations that caused the end to asexual childbirth and the reason behind the mutations in the original human beings on this planet. To this day, scientists are not sure if it was a bacteria or just a natural genetic process that caused the mutation but what we do know is, that this change was the beginning of a new human life form.

Scientists have researched and studied and all agree that the XX chromosomes are the result of genetic perfection or what is considered close to perfection in the evolutionary tree of human life, and the reason why the Black women were able to populate the world and repopulate the world for hundreds of years without the need for men who did not come into existence until several centuries later and are the result of that genetic mutation. Due to unknown environmental changes on the earth a genetic mutation caused the Black women to begin to start producing humans or offsprings with XY chromosomes, humans later to be called men, who are scientifically a genetic mutation, offspring, and descendant of the Black women. Thus the first genetic mutation of the Black woman is the Black man who the Black woman gave birth to through asexual childbirth. Scientists have discovered that all other races regardless of nationality, ethnicity, religion, or sexual orientation are another genetic mutation of the Black woman that happened millions and millions of years later and are to be considered more of a parasitic clan of beings. Scientists have collected hardcore rock-solid scientific data that proves that these other genetic mutations, other races of people, did not come to this planet until just under eight thousand years ago. Scientific data has also shown that this is about the time the earth begins to heat up and some scientists have even theorized that this is when global warming began. Meteorologists across the globe have examined weather patterns from thousands of years ago and have all agreed that this may be the case. And that these new foreign genetic mutations are the cause and beginning of global warming.

The genetic mutations or in Layman's terms, that occurred during the evolution of humans was the unnatural change in the DNA sequencing of the original human beings on this planet, or in other words, there was a mistake or misfire in the copying of DNA that happened at a great rate due to environmental changes and human manipulation of DNA. What caused these changes are still unknown but we know that human manipulation and unethical and immoral scientific experiments with the DNA of wild animals and then later bonding these combined wild animal DNA with human beings is what began the great decline of civilization. What we learned or discovered through extensive archaeological research was that DNA and genetic manipulation were done by someone unethical and immoral and the unnamed scientists who many believe tried to play God and or had vindictive or vengeful reasons behind their motives wanted to create a new life form or organism to be used to destroy or overthrow the human race to do their bidding some eight thousand years ago.

The reason behind the real motives of this unnamed scientist has yet to be determined but it has been theorized that this unnamed scientist wanted to build an army, a super army to overthrow the free but tribal governments in Africa, destroying their free political process thus allowing for this person to become ruler of the African nations and their vast territories that span across the globe from Asia to what is now known as the Americas. Archaeologists have discovered this unnamed scientist's makeshift lab in what is now known as the Kapova caves in Russia, but at the time around ten thousand years ago was called The Fulsome mountains located in the valley of Doom by the locales and indigenous people who migrated out of Africa hundreds of thousands of years ago and settled in this area for exploration and to populate the area.

Ancient art, drawings, and paintings discovered in the frozen caves of the Fulsome mountains have provided archaeologists and scientists with a story that proves the existence of the unnamed scientists and their plan or attempt to create a new more animalistic, and barbaric life form. Due to the complexities and difficulties of translating such a complex and ancient language. The name of this unnamed scientist is impossible to translate into English or any other language outside of the continent of Africa for that matter due to the simplistic and primitive nature of these mostly European based languages and barbaric forms of communication. And many of the locales and tribal members on the continent refuse to translate this part of the complex ancient African language or form of communication out of fear of old local African folklore and the belief that saying this unnamed scientist name will bring not only a great shame but death to those who speak this evil person's name and death to their tribes and their families and will bring about unheard-of misery to them and their loved ones.

Unfortunately, we may never know the name of the unnamed scientists who we now have archaeological and scientific proof as the first person on this planet to conduct DNA and genetic manipulation and who successfully created a foreign life form outside of the natural process of human nature. But to call these experiments a success is maybe not the best way to describe the creation of a new but foreign life form by a scientist in a lab or makeshift lab located in a frozen cave because if you look at the outcome and the destruction and chaos that this new foreign life form has done on this planet in less than eight thousand years of existence. Then using the word successful would be a misleading and wrong indicator of what truly occurred when this foreign life form was introduced to the delicate balance and ecosystem of this planet. This foreign life form is scientifically speaking, a parasite, that continues to leach on its host and suck the life out of it. This foreign life form, which we now have scientifically labeled as a parasite, has upset the delicate balance of nature on this planet causing great harm, possibly irreparable damage and harm to this planet and human existence on this planet. Many in the scientific community call this foreign life form and the unethical creation of this foreign life form an abomination to nature and to the human way of life.
